Agency Purpose

The Australian Electoral Commission (AEC) is an independent statutory authority established by the Australian Government to maintain an impartial and independent electoral system for eligible voters through active electoral roll management, efficient delivery of polling services, and targeted education and public awareness programs.

The AEC's values and commitments

The AEC values and commitments are an essential component of our operating environment and frame how AEC staff work. The AEC's focus is on electoral integrity through the values of quality, agility and professionalism.

Locations

The AEC is geographically diverse with a National Office in Canberra, a State Office in each state capital and a Northern Territory Office in Darwin. Each state is divided into electoral divisions (there are 150 across Australia), which may alter in accordance with changes to the distribution of electoral boundaries.

Work Environment

The Information, Communication and Technology (ICT) branch comprises approximately 80 personnel and has intimate knowledge of the AEC's business and systems, as well as a very stable and experienced workforce to maintain and enhance those systems. The ICT branch staff have been through numerous election cycles and not only understand but have experienced the pressures of an election.

The ICT branch is located in the National office in Canberra.

The AEC is committed to the APS values of being impartial, committed to service, accountable, respectful and ethical.
