I wish to comment on proposed redistributions affecting the north shore of Sydney. I believe that one of the factors taken into account is community of interest including economic social and regional while excluding the purely political. It seems possible that one of the "Teal" seats will be lost. That would seem a shame as a defining feature of these electorates has been the revival of community interest in the last few years with mass community involvement on all sorts of projects. On the other hand the submission to delete one of these seats , warringah, comes from the Liberal party. It is hard to see this as anything other than political.
