Dear Sir

I am writing to voice my objection to the changes to the NSW seat of Parkes electorate and the dropping of the Gwydir seat.

You are not taking into account the Electoral Act which states that you give due consideration to community interests, means of communication, travel and geographical features, when you suggested these boundary changes.

Country people have a right to representation, and a member of parliament could not possible represent all the people in a seat of this geographical size. There is just to much travelling involved. How could a voter ever see their member.

Community interests are not being represented when the country loses another seat to city people. They alright have to many seats. Just because we live outside of metropolitan areas does not mean that we don't need fair representation.

It is very hard is live in the country when we are always losing services, we can't get doctors, we can't have children in our hospitals., there are not enough police, the stations are closing down, we need representation of our voices.

Yours faithfully,
Mrs S Williams-Green
