Dear Sir / Madam

I refer to the proposed redistribution of federal electoral boundaries in New South Wales and would like to suggest a possible name for one of the electorates.

I believe it would be very much in the national interest to have an electoral division named after one of Australia's greatest sons. I refer of course to Don Bradman.

There are some locality names that could be abolished for example Prospect or Werriwa.

I favour the re-naming of Werriwa. It is the Aboriginal name for Lake George. In case you don't know, Lake George is the famous 'disappearing lake' between Canberra and Goulburn and as such is about 100 kilometres away from the existing Werriwa!!.

In any case we should have a Bradman. As far as Prospect is concerned: I don't think he was ever much of a 'prospect' but perhaps it should be re-named after our late, great former Prime Minister Billy McMahon.

Yours faithfully

Ken Maher
