Dear Sir or Madam

We the undersigned object to the loss of a country electorate in the proposed redistribution of electoral boundaries.

There are so few seats left representing country voters and so very many seats representing city voters.

Would it not be better to address this imbalance by amalgamating some of the city electorates?

It is extremely difficult for our elected country Member of Parliament to fully cover his or her electorate because of the huge distances to be travelled to meet constituents. Consequently it would be so much more difficult if you make a country electorate larger.

Yours sincerely
