While it is admirable to name a new electorate after a known poet, it may be better not to use the name of WRIGHT for a generation as too many people in Queensland today associate that name with an infamous state and federal politician who was convicted of RAPE and served time in prison for that offence.

People have long memories in these circumstances.

The same name was proposed for the present electorate of Flynn, and rejected for the same reason.

What is wrong with using the names of native Australian flora and fauna?
