I guess I am opposed to the renaming of Franklin to the Aboriginal name of the warrior who tortured and raped his female victims. Not because I am in anyway against our indigenous brothers or their culture. More likely I am directly opposed to the current trend in government of trying to create a line of division between white Australia and Aboriginal Australia. Ask our returned veterans, both black and white. We are all Australians under the one Australian national flag because both black and white, indigenous and European descendants have made this beautiful country what it is by the grace of God. If forgiveness is required for previous generational issues then let it flow and let's continue to move forward together. Stop trying to play white against black as a divided society does not prosper as it should.

Your motivation for the name change is misaligned.
